CLASS HISTORY

There is one book which we open with pride, we members of the class of June, '21, and the name of that book is "The History of Our Class." We love to read it because it tells of our hopes, ambitions and accomplishments.

The first part of our little book is devoted to the narration of our experiences, as freshmen,—bewildered, amazed, little freshmen trying to get used to a new routine and to an enormous building thronged with students. As the days passed by we found that it was exciting to be freshmen, but it was better to be sophomores.

In our sophomore year several of the boys turned out for athletics, and a few of them earned their letters. A desire for social life obsessed us, and so we had a party at the Woodward theater. This event brought to a close a most eventful year.

The Junior year found us with our ranks reinforced by a group of returned soldiers and sailors who had come back from the world war to finish their studies at North Central. Although we considered ourselves very sober and dignified, we had a "Kid" party to which we invited the Junior A's. The feature of the event was "Brick" Johnson, who was immaculately attired in gymnasium trousers, a white sailor's middy, white shoes, and half socks. In the fall of that year we learned to bear defeat in a sportsmanlike manner when Lewis and Clark won the annual football game. However, during the winter and spring we won basket ball and baseball. Just before school closed for the summer we went on a hike to Downriver park.

The fall of 1920 found us back at North Central ready to do our very best in our last year. The year was begun successfully, and on Thanksgiving Day our football team brought victory home to the north side. In accordance with a long-established custom, we invited the Senior A's to a theater party at the Woodward.

When the last semester rolled around, we elected Glen Johnson president. It was a busy semester. Many of our classmates received honor emblems by winning places on the Scholastic Honor Roll.

Margaret Bement made the highest average ever attained in North Central. The class play, "Merely Mary Ann," was an unqualified success, and the cast displayed unusual dramatic ability. On "kid" day we forgot our newly acquired dignity and paraded through the halls in the garbs of our childhood. Not long after we were invited to a picnic at Medical Lake, by the Senior B's.

Class Day found us in a turmoil of excitement mingled with regret at the thought that it was our last in North Central. The supreme moment arrived and, as in a dream, we received our diplomas and were ready to go forth into the outside world.

Thus ends our little book, and though you may never care to open its pages again, we shall open it always with the same loving pride as we do on this day in June, 1921.

EDWARD MURPHY, Chairman.
MARY FOSLEY.
MAY NEWTON.

CLASS WON'T

The class of June, '21, being of a selfish and egotistical nature, and realizing that never before in the history of North Central has a class done so much for the school, desires to keep its many virtues, willing away only those possessions which are of no value. We, therefore, dispose of our belongings accordingly.

We keep the gift of gab peculiar to the infamous Smiths, in order that it may serve in persuading St. Peter to take them in.

To entertain us in our heavenly home, we take Lenna Baird. She won the prize in grade school for singing the loudest. ('Twas a leather medal, but 'twas nice.)

Maggie Miller will feel at home in heaven, for she's always harping about something.

"Bury me with my head out, so you can use it for a tombstone," says Harleth Steinke.

If this were a class will, we'd leave Dick and Lucille's matrimonial bliss to Dwight and Louise, but we won't.

"Rosy" Johnson leaves North Central (almost as good as he found it).

The class won't writer, doubtful of his reaching the pearly gates with the rest of the class, intends to take a fan and some ice with him.

We leave a vote of thanks to Doctor Benefiel and the athletic board. "We sure appreciate getting our letters."

We leave our appreciation to Walt Horn for helping Margaret with her studies. (P.S. She even got A in astronomy.)

We take our wonderful good humor, as evidenced by Bob Woods when he said, "Most of the fellows intend to be broke when they graduate, but I'm going to be a little broker."

Ah, we'll be different in this won't. Instead of willing our seats in convocation to the senior B's, we leave them to the freshmen. (They'll sit there anyway.)

Another proverbial gift to leave is a new joke book to Mr. Collins, but in order not to trouble future class will writers, we desire to take all his joke books with us, instead.

We take with us, Hod Pollock and his ambition to return to his native home in Sweden.

Swede Swanson was seen walking down the street singing, "Ireland must be heaven, for my mother came from there." He'll be happy in his new home for he will see St. Patrick.

We leave out of this will—all the teachers and students who want free publicity. (They wouldn't pay us enough.)

FOR SALE—One palm beach suit; it won't be hot where I'm going. See Jerome Andrus. (Paid adv.)

We can hardly say anything about Ron without getting personal, or at least getting Witt-y.

Omigosh! Whomelse have we got a gudge against? We wonder what Jean Williams would do if we took Ed with us?

Helen Howard hopes that all angels ain't females.

Neal Smith challenges any one to break his record of seven years flat at North Central. (Doubtful contestants are Ernie Henry, Harold Berven, and Aston-Burke & Co.) Yes, Neal started in September, 1914.

Finally realizing that Hanley, Morrow, Gullette, and Whitfield already have the other destiny ahead of them, we're unable to take them with us, but we hope that their future company is enjoyable.

And so, for better or for worse, and feeling sorry for the school, we depart.

THE CLASS OF JUNE, '21,
CLASS WILL COMMITTEE.

Neal Smith, Chairman,

Joy Williams.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY

"Merely Mary Ann," a four-act comedy by Israel Zangwill, which was presented May 13 in the North Central auditorium by the Senior A class, was a great success and was met with much approval by a large audience. Under the skilful direction of Miss Lucille Elliott, instructor in public speaking and dramatics, the players took their respective parts with the ease of professionals.

The play deals with a little orphan slavey, Mary Ann, whose life has always been one of drudgery. She falls in love with an aristocratic young music composer, Mr. Launcelot, who lives at the boarding house in which she works. Launcelot is about to rescue the little girl from her life of drudgery when she is left with a large fortune. Launcelot's pride prevents his marrying Mary Ann, and she goes away. After six years they are again united and all ends well.

NORTH CENTRAL FACULTY

W. W. JONES
(Mathematics)

W. W. Jones is a mathematician by trade, but a farmer by inclination. He was graduated from Purdue university in the course of electrical engineering in 1896. He received his bachelor of arts degree in 1903 at Stanford, where he majored in mathematics. In 1905 he came to Spokane and taught at Lewis and Clark for four years. He was transferred to North Central in 1909 and has taught here for twelve years. Mr. Jones lives on his farm in Pleasant Prairie, where he is a very successful farmer. His hobby is potatoes, so he says, and it is said that his farm products are a credit to a mathematical farmer.

R. S. SANBORN
(Science)

R. S. Sanborn has taught in the high schools of Spokane for sixteen years. He was graduated from the Iowa State college. Before coming to Spokane, he taught in Salt Lake City.

"There are something over a thousand enrollments in the science department this year," says Mr. Sanborn. "The department has outgrown its present quarters. We are sadly in need of rooms, properly equipped for science work. During this year, we have had to establish another botany laboratory. This year's quarters have been temporary, and it is hoped that next year a room will be permanently allotted to care for the increased enrollment in botany and zoology. There should also be at least two new general science rooms to handle the work for the new semester."

W. J. SANDERS
(English)

W. J. Sanders has been at North Central six years. He was graduated from Lebanon Valley college with a degree of B. A., and from Columbia university with an M. A. degree. The English department is North Central's largest department. Altogether, eighteen teachers are working under Mr. Sanders. Next to his teaching, Mr. Sanders' greatest interest is the organization of the course of study in English. Upon this he has worked for three years.

In order to furnish an outlet for the literary talent of the school, Mr. Sanders says that he would like to see the old Tamarack revived, or some other magazine of a similar character established, in addition to the North Central News. This magazine would be devoted to literary material of the school, and would be put out by a class of students interested in literary work.

MISS NELLE WILSON
(Vocational)

Miss Nelle Wilson has the distinction of being head of one of the most interesting and active departments in North Central.

She was graduated from the University of Indiana, and has taken post-graduate work at Columbia.

During her three years at North Central Miss Wilson has made the work of her department extremely lively and interesting.

The purpose of her department is to place students where they may obtain work while attending school, to offer vocational guidance, to help the students select their courses of study, and to advise the students concerning college work and college requirements.

An important feature of the vocational department is the intelligence tests, of which Miss Wilson has charge. Self-analysis, promoted through questionnaires, is also becoming prominent in the vocational department.

MISS MARGARET FEHR
(Language)

Miss Margaret Fehr, who heads North Central's language department, is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. Her hobbies, she says, are flowers and the wild-woods; but her greatest interest is in Europe. Miss Fehr plans to sail July 2 for Europe, where she will travel through Spain, France, and Italy.

Miss Fehr will make purchases for the school while abroad.

E. H. FEARON
(Commercial)

E. H. Fearon, head of the Commercial department at North Central, is a graduate of the Zanerian Art college, the Kentucky state normal, and the Ohio Business institute. For eight years Mr. Fearon was employed as an accountant in one of the largest lumber firms of New England. Mr. Fearon worked with Frank Broker, C. P. A. No. 1, New York, before coming to North Central.

T. O. RAMSEY
(History)

T. O. Ramsey, who heads North Central's history department, was graduated from the University of Missouri. He has taught in North Central since January, 1912.

"In addition to teaching," said Mr. Ramsey, "my only hobby is horticulture."

C. OLIN RICE
(Music)

C. Olin Rice has been a member of the North Central faculty and the head of its music department since February, 1909.

Every year an operetta is given under his direction by members of the opera class. Mr. Rice is a graduate of the music department of Baker university, Kansas.

"I have a great desire," Mr. Rice said, "to interest a large number of boys in music. Too many boys have a mistaken idea that music is for the girls alone. They would much rather hear some one else play or sing than do it themselves. We need a greater variety of instrumental players, especially a good clarinet player."

Mr. Rice says that his only ambition is to get as far away as possible from music or anything pertaining to music during the summer months.

MISS CARRIE HITCHCOCK
(Household Arts)

Miss Carrie Hitchcock has been teaching at North Central since 1911. Before coming to Spokane, she was supervisor of domestic science in the high schools and grade schools of Ithaca, New York, and was also dietitian and head of the home economics department at Wolfe Hall, a girls' school in Denver. She was graduated from the Mechanics Institute at Rochester, New York, in the home economics course.

MISS JESSIE GIBSON
(Girls' League)

Three years ago, the Girls' League was organized by a North Central teacher, Miss Jessie Gibson. Since she founded the League she has given freely of her time and efforts for its welfare, it is difficult to write anything about Miss Gibson without mentioning the League.

High schools all over the United States, and particularly in the west, have expressed their interest in the Girls' League, and many schools have founded similar organizations.

Miss Gibson was graduated from the University of Idaho and has taken post-graduate work at the University of California, Columbia university, and Washington State college.

S. L. MOYER
(Boys' Athletics)

S. L. Moyer, who heads the boys' athletic department at North Central, is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall college. Mr. Moyer has been teaching at North Central for ten years. Next to teaching, Mr. Moyer says he would rather play golf and fish than do anything else.

"The important thing in high school athletics," says Mr. Moyer, "is to get every boy in school interested in some kind of athletics. Athletics should not be limited to the good athletes. The greatest need at North Central is a suitable athletic field near here."

MISS ELSA PINKHAM
(Girls' Athletics)

Miss Elsa Pinkham, head of the girls' athletic department at North Central, was graduated from Sargent. Miss Pinkham has taken post-graduate work at Columbia. During her three years as head of the athletic department she has done much to interest the girls in athletics. She is a firm believer in inter-class and inter-school contests.

Miss Pinkham has coached all the dancing for North Central operettas. She also plans much of the dancing for different high school entertainments.

That Miss Pinkham is a "good sport" is the unanimous opinion of both the boys and girls of North Central. Her favorite hobby is playing the violin, and, according to the girls of the school, her only fault is compelling the girls who talk excessively and those who chew gum, to remain after school and listen to her practice her scales.

LOWELL C. BRADFORD
(Boys' Federation)

L. C. Bradford, who heads the Boys' Federation at North Central, was graduated from Reed college in 1915. He has done special work in debating and student government. He came to North Central in November, 1916. Mr. Bradford has had charge of debate at North Central since that time. He has coached eleven debates. Of these debates, North Central has won two out of three with Lewis and Clark and five out of seven with Walla Walla. He has coached twelve of the senior class orators.

In the fall of 1918 he organized the Boys' Federation. Since then, he has directed its activities and the work of twenty committees under the three main departments.

He is faculty director of the Rooters' and Delta clubs.

Mr. Bradford's greatest hobby is music. He plays in the school orchestra, and teaches music outside of school hours.

DR. A. H. BENEFIEL, PRINCIPAL

In the fall of 1918, Dr. A. H. Benefiel stepped from the vice-principal's desk in the main office into the private office and position of principal of North Central. Since that time he has done much to make North Central a democratic and progressive school. Many students little realize the amount of work and responsibility with which he is confronted as head of such a large and ever advancing institution.

By the principles he has advanced and the plans he has fostered to make North Central a bigger and better school, it is quite evident that he believes in, and practices, the progressive spirit and the predominant action expressed in the school motto, "En Avant."

THE CLASS ADVISERS

Each graduating class has an official class director and the girls of each graduating class choose a faculty adviser. The assistance given by these faculty members is of great value to the classes in their undertakings and tends to keep them headed in the right direction.

The work of T. O. Ramsey, class director, and of Miss Agnes Mellugh, girls' adviser, has been no exception to the rule—unless it might have been above the average. The class appreciates the cooperation of these counselors in the tasks it has had to perform, for truly the advisers have contributed greatly to the success of the class.

BROADEN OUT

A person never knows what he can do until he attempts different things to find out what his talents are, and the sooner he begins to do things, the sooner will he find out what he can do. The place to get a start is in high school. High school affords the student opportunities in its many lines of study and also in its various activities aside from studies.

A student, upon entering high school, should get interested in some enterprise other than the regular course of study and should follow it up. From this he may branch to another, and still another, and so on until at the end of his high school course he has so developed and so broadened himself that he may step out in the world prepared to take up new and heavier tasks, and to carry successfully more and greater responsibilities.

THE MOTHERS' AND DADS' CLUBS

The work of the North Central Mothers' and Dads' clubs is indeed highly commendable. Early last fall the Mothers' club took up the huge task of raising a band fund with which to buy instruments for the school band. A total of $450 was raised through popular subscriptions by north side people. Recently the club has been cooperating with the faculty in attaining higher scholarship among the students.

The Dads' club assisted the Mothers by donating a large sum to the band fund. It will be remembered also for donating the service of its cars to take the football team to Pullman last fall, and it has assisted in like manner on other occasions.

The students of North Central like to see the mothers and dads take an interest in what the school is doing and join in as many of its activities as they can. This promotes better feeling among the teachers, the students, and the parents. North Central greatly appreciates the service rendered it by these clubs.

DEVELOPMENT IN ACTIVITIES

Activities other than studies are the life of any high school. A high school without any athletics, without a paper or a magazine of some kind, without plays and entertainments, without debates and literary contests, would not be considered a real high school. Many people think that these activities take the students' time and interest from their studies. This is true to some extent, but the students are well paid for the time they spend on the various activities.

They are developing themselves along lines other than book knowledge, so that when they are graduated and sent out into life they are better fitted to handle themselves properly and to meet with steadier hands and hearts the problems with which they are bound to meet in civil life. If the students did not have this training and development in high school, they would be handicapped, for "mighty oaks from little acorns grow." If the students do not "plant their acorns" while in high school, it will take that much longer for the "mighty oaks" to grow and to develop.

"EN AVANT"

With the training North Central is equipped to give us if we are only willing to give ourselves to it and have the right stuff in us, we are fitted to live up to its motto, and to go forward always as we have gone within its walls. It has trained us to fight if necessary, or to employ diplomacy if more discreet, but in all cases, to press on and up.

Let us not, however, become hasty, slighting our path behind, for time is the test of all things and the revealer of secrets, and a spot skipped over unjustly will show more the farther we leave it behind us. Past achievements should be such that we may forget them without fear; they may serve as an example to those following after.

May the graduate of June, '21, and all future graduates of North Central uphold and respect our motto and watchword, "En Avant," and as each goes out into his unknown bear in mind this quotation:

"Heaven is not gained at a single bound,
But we build the ladder by which we rise
From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies,
And we mount to its summit round by round."

MISS EDITH J. BROOMHALL

On Tuesday, March 1, in Minneapolis, Minnesota, occurred the death of Miss Edith J. Broomhall. Miss Broomhall will be remembered at North Central as an instructor in Spanish and as the author of the librettos of the operettas, "Gaucha Land" and "Khufu's Daughter." She was the author of several Spanish compositions, and of a book, "Spoken Spanish," which is used as a text in many high schools. She was the founder of the Spanish club and helped to found the Masque society, of which she was the director for several years.

In 1918 Miss Broomhall went to Minneapolis, where she taught Spanish at Central high school until a few months before her death.

With the passing of Miss Broomhall, North Central lost one of its best and sincerest friends, for she was ever an active booster and promoter of the enterprises of North Central.

A LEANER

One day a man was sauntering along a country road. He had nowhere to go and nothing to do; and what was worse, he had nothing especial on his mind. Presently he approached a wagon that was evidently stuck in a mud hole. A mule was hitched to the wagon and a farmer was at the mule's head pulling on the bridle in an endeavor to get the mule to change his mind and pull the wagon out of the mud. But the mule would not budge.

The stranger was amused at the farmer's predicament, but instead of helping the unfortunate man, he leaned against a nearby fence post and looked upon the scene with no personal interest.

"The poor fool," mused the stranger, "he ought to know he won't get that mule started that way. He ought to get behind and push, or get a 'two-by-four' and try to boost the wheels out of the hole."

But who was the greater fool, he who was leaning idly against a fence post and musing at another's misfortune, or the unfortunate one who was working to free himself from a difficult position, but who had not yet found the right method? The stranger was not even supporting his own weight—he leaned against the fence post so that he would not have to stand alone—and, what was worse, he did not attempt or show any inclination to help the man get his wagon free. And yet he called the other man a fool! In reality was not he, himself, a bigger "jackass" than the lazy, balky mule that was hitched to the stranded wagon?

It is far better to be pushing or pulling forward to get an object to its proper destination, even if the most effective method has not yet been discovered, than to be leaning backward against a stationary object and ridiculing a person who is working to attain his purpose. This is true even though the method may not be entirely successful. If one must lean against something, he should not choose a fence post; but should put his shoulder to the wheel and lean FORWARD.

SENIOR A FAREWELL

It is most difficult to couch in fitting language the mingled emotions of the students graduating from North Central high school. The world looks roseate, filled with golden opportunities, yet we feel a heart pang to realize that the hour has arrived when we as students must sever the many pleasant relationships with the faculty and the students of North Central.

Whatever fortune may await the members of the June class of 1921, the memories of the happy years spent in North Central will always linger, a bright and beautiful experience which will abide with us as long as we live.

In saying farewell we realize that the future of our school will be assured and that the students who follow in our footsteps will respond in the future as in the past in support of scholastic activities. That past achievements will be surpassed is our confident hope and sincere desire.

THE FALL OF RICHARD

In spite of the surprisingly small number of his years—thirteen—Richard had been a ladies' man for some time. His gallantry might even be said to have begun at the somewhat immature age of two, when, seeing a diminutive female drop her equally diminutive handkerchief, he had let go of his mother's finger and run to pick up and return the bit of lace and linen. Not a whit less gallant was he at the proverbial "awkward age" of the average boy. Up through all the grades, he had "had a girl," and strange to say, the "fellers" had never teased him about it—probably because the trait seemed so natural to him. He was an experienced heart-breaker, for alas! this lad was a fickle chap. Each grade had seen a different object of his affections: each new attraction meant some slighted miss. Because of his handsome face and teasing eyes, his love had ever been requited—until now. "It's a long lane that has no turning," and at the ripe age of thirteen, Richard learned this lesson.

He had but recently moved to Hortonsville, and he surveyed with undisguised satisfaction the ladies of the land, for they were fair. Each one had either looked and sighed, or peeped and affected indifference; and these were signs of love, Richard knew—ah, Richard knew.

Did I say each—no, not each, no, not each; for there was one in all that motley crowd who knew of Richard and his ways. Just one, but one too many for the peace of Richard's mind. He saw her first at the May Day exercises. She was not Queen of the May, who sat in all her bland tow-headedness on the throne. She was the leader of the dancers—a tiny, black haired, red-cheeked little thing who danced for pure joy. Her cousin had been one of Richard's earliest victims, but had speedily recovered from her woe; and once, at a bed-time conference with Barbara, she had related at length the story of Richard. Barbara was prepared! Immediately following the dancing, Richard stepped up to a boy with whom he had become slightly acquainted, and asked for an introduction to "the girl that danced in front." Richard committed himself on no account—then. Having obtained the introduction, he began, "That was certainly a pretty dance you were in."

"Oh, did you like it?" She gave him a bewitching smile.

"Yeah. Say, what grade'r you in? I'm in the seventh."

"Oh, are you?" too politely.

"Yeah." She seemed to be looking for some one. He had meant to invite her to an approaching party, but somehow he felt an unaccountable bashfulness. He had never felt that way before. The girl had treated him all right, but he knew all the time that she was laughing at him. Suddenly there loomed upon Richard's horizon a tall, lean, red-headed, good-looking fellow. He gave Richard only a look but to Barbara he said with easy familiarity:

"Well, let's go."

She started away with him; then, as if courtesy were an after-thought, she turned to Richard and said:

"Good-bye."

"G'bye." Richard was dumfounded. He could not believe his senses.

He saw her next day on the school grounds and spoke to her. She responded cordially and stopped to talk.

"Say, do you remember Thelma Conley? Seems to me I've heard her speak of you. She lives at Waverly."

"Aw, I s'pose she's one of the girls that were in my room," said Richard deceitfully, for he remembered her perfectly. "I didn't like 'em." He thought he was doing well. There was the chance to ask her to the party. "Say, have you—" The brick-top again! Darn! This time Barbara did not go away; instead she and her tall friend, Mack, stayed and talked. In their conversation she mentioned "the first party, my cousin, Thelma Conley, that time d'ye remember?" and other interesting subjects. Richard was miserable, and yet he could not tear himself away; he was glad when the bell rang.

The next day Richard met her as she came from the building. "Do you go this way?" he asked, pointing down the street he had seen her take the preceding night.

"No," she replied, looking at him with a perfectly solemn, expressionless face, and gayly dancing eyes. Richard went sadly on alone. Soon he saw a group of girls emerge from the school-house. "Bab" joined them and they went off, the way he had pointed. He couldn't understand it.

He might have been successful in other fields had he chosen to try them. The girl who sat in front of him was constantly attempting to be teased. When he finally pulled her hair for lack of anything better to do, she was delighted, and immediately began to write notes. Richard responded very feebly indeed, in spite of the fact that she was pretty and altogether eligible. His heart was gone to Barbara. Alas!

He tried writing notes, but she either tore them up or—curses!—handed them over to that red-head Mack. Then Richard took to following her home. One night she went two miles out of the way because she knew he was following. He reached home two hours late, and, on being severely interviewed by his parents, decided to give up that practice.

One day at school he managed to corner her long enough to ask her to the party. "Why, yes, I guess I'll go. Thanks," Richard was exultant beyond measure. How could it have happened? At last his hopes were to be realized!

That afternoon his enthusiasm received a slight damper in the shape of a conversation which he overheard. He was just outside the open hall door, and Bab was talking to a friend. "Yes, mother said I'd better go to that party even if Mack couldn't go. He's going to Waverly, you know. So I'm going with that Richard, and he's going to find out something!" Richard had an uncomfortable premonition.

Nevertheless, he called for her on the night of the party feeling quite joyful and proud. When they started, however, he saw that she was intending to be apparently cordial toward him, while her eyes mocked him steadily. As they proceeded to the party, his spirits sank lower and lower. When he asked her how many dances he might have, she said, nonehalantly, "Why, two, of course; the first and the last." Despair again! Bab had her program filled almost immediately, but Richard, much to the disgust of the girls, did not attempt to fill his. The music began and they started to dance. They did not get on very well, for some reason or other. Richard did not understand why.

Suddenly it happened! Richard could not tell how, but it happened. Perhaps he slipped; it felt as if some one tripped him. He fell headlong to the floor. Seemingly, only by great effort did Barbara save herself, and Richard tore her sash badly when he fell. Needless to say, everyone crowded around to see and laugh at the poor unfortunate and Bab laughed most of all. Mack must have dropped in unexpectedly, for he was there too. In an agony of humiliation, Richard pulled himself from the floor, feeling that he would much rather go through it. He looked around for Bab, but she was not there. Perhaps she had gone to fix her dress. But no! Here she came dancing with Mack. When she glanced at poor Richard, she laughed the most scornful laugh he had ever heard; and danced on. She never spoke to him again.

Richard had fallen at last.

MARGARET BEMENT.

THE SPIRITUALIST

I heard the door close behind me, and I knew that I was in the room. How dark everything was! I could hardly see where I was going. Some one grasped me gently by the arm, and led me to a cushioned seat. Then a soft voice spoke, "You wish me to reveal to you some of the secrets of the spirit world?" The voice was gentle, but I was too much frightened to speak. "If only that awful darkness would go away!" I thought.

As if in answer to my inward thought, a faint light issued from a lamp which was hanging from the ceiling. By this light, I could faintly distinguish the contents of the room. The furniture was simple. There was a table in the center of the room, and one other chair besides the one I had stood near it. On the table was the mysterious crystal globe, of which I had heard so much. There were two windows but they were both hung with heavy black velvet drapes which allowed no light to enter.

My eyes wandered to the figure at my side. I knew it was a woman because I could see her soft brown hair in spite of the dark turban she wore. Her robes were black and flowing. She wore no ornament but the silver pin which held the gown in place on her left shoulder.

She watched me narrowly, while I made these observations. I felt sure that she was trying to read my character and, not wishing to give her any satisfaction, I leaned back in my chair affecting indifference. When she saw the action, she smiled as if amused. At this I felt very foolish.

At last she spoke, but it was only to request that I give her my hand in order that she might read what she might see in my palms. I complied. Then she began to tell me what I supposed she saw there. It was not surprising to hear her tell me my name and age, for I had written that on the card I had filled out. She read my character next. I was astounded to hear her tell me my faults and my good points, my likes and dislikes. She was very accurate. I began to have faith in her at this time.

After reading my character she led me to the other chair, she herself taking the one I had vacated. After telling me that she would go into a trance, she closed her eyes and remained motionless. The room was perfectly still for a moment, and then she began to speak in a very sepulchral voice.

"I see two spirits coming towards me. You have a friend in the spirit world who wishes to speak to you through me. She is an elderly woman,—your grandmother, I understand. She wishes to tell you that you have an enemy,—a tall dark-complexioned woman. Never tell her your secrets. Do not trust her, for she will betray you. That is the message from your grandmother. The second spirit is that of your great, great grandfather. He wishes to tell you that when he made his will he named your mother as one of the relatives to receive money, but a wicked cousin destroyed the will. You must right this wrong. That is all."

I listened intently and in my own mind decided that the woman was our neighbor, Mrs. Wright. (Poor Mrs. Wright, I accused her without a fair consideration of the evidence.) As for the will, I determined to ask my mother about it as soon as I should arrive home.

Meanwhile the spiritualist was coming out of the trance. She shuddered, opened her eyes, and then said, "I know nothing whatever about what I have just told you. I do not know what the spirits make me tell."

Now she led me to the crystal globe, telling me to ask any question I wished and then look into the globe. I waited a moment and then said, "Let me see myself as I will be three years from now." Then I looked hastily into the globe. To my surprise I saw myself driving a truck. What, a lady driving a truck! I was very much astonished. The spiritualist only smiled. Then I looked again. I saw myself writing busily. That was more to my taste. I loved to write. I asked several more questions about my future, and each time I saw my answer in the crystal globe. It was half an hour before I was at last ready to go.

For the price of one dollar, I had received a message from grandmother, another from my great, great grandfather, and a reading of my past, present, and future. I felt that I had spent my dollar for a worthy purpose: such is the delusion of the superstitious!

"I JUST LOVE THE CIRCUS"

"Oh-h, don't you know?" exclaimed by little pink-ginghamed four-year-old neighbor to her blue-ginghamed playmate. "It's next Saturday and my mama and my daddy are going to take me. My brother's going to get up real early an' go down an' help, then he'll get in for nothin'."

"Gee, I wish I was a boy," sighed the blue-ginghamed girl, "and then I'd get in for nothin', an' see the elephants an', an' everythin'—but I guess my mama'll take me. I haven't ever seen a circus in all my life."

I had been eavesdropping on my little friends, who were trying to play dolls but were not succeeding because the lure of the circus had displaced every other pleasure from their childish minds. The rest of their excited conversation went unheeded, for I was thinking of my first circus.

It was a beautiful night and the moonlight shadows around the huge tents seemed to tell of romance and adventure in that unknown land of wild animals and tinselled ladies. I grasped my companion's hand tightly and we started for the main tent. Once inside, my heart thrilled with the sight of the big red balloons, pink lemonade and acres of sawdust. Everything was perfect, or so it seemed to me; but I liked especially the funny clowns and pretty ladies with the red lips. I cried when it was time to go home, home to a drab life of dolls and dishes but no fairy ladies. The next day I finished by big bag of peanuts and popcorn, stuck a pin in my balloon (to see what would happen), and began to wish for the next circus. To my inquiring friends I repeated the details over and over again, and ended the narrative by sighing blissfully, "Oh, it was wonderful. I just love the circus!"

The Saturday after the conversation with my gingham friends I had occasion to go to town. Sterner subjects had driven away all thought of the circus, and so I found myself wondering at the crowds that lined the streets. Then I saw the balloon man and realized what was happening. Soon I began to watch the crowd. Here in the front row was a crowd of children; beside them a big fat man with a prosperous-looking cigar in his mouth stood idly viewing the crowd, and peering over his shoulder was a small shabbily dressed woman who had evidently taken her brood to see the parade. Further down the street was a delegation of negroes all dressed for the occasion and beside them was a good portion of Chinatown. Both sections had equipped themselves with red balloons and black all-day suckers. From somewhere out of this sea of humanity there came a voice a little muffled by the popcorn the owner was evidently consuming. It was saying, "Oh, 'lo May, I'm goin' to see the p'rade. Been here since ten o'clock." To my delight I recognized little "Miss Pink Gingham" and not far from her I saw "Miss Blue Gingham," whose powers of mastication were similarly exerted. Every race, class and sex could be found in this conglomerated mass along the street and all seemed to be enjoying the celebration.

I wondered bitterly, as I hurried along the street, why I could not enjoy it as I had on that moonlight night so long ago. To me the ladies in their brilliant gowns seemed but a mockery. The silly antics of the clown perhaps cloaked the real man whose heart was sick of the never-ending roving life. The sweet smile of the "tinsel ladies" perhaps hid a longing for a home and a life free from the sham and farce of the circus. The pink lemonade and red balloons no longer attracted my longing glances, for I had learned something of the ways of the circus since my first circus day. Only too well had I come to know that "all is not gold that glitters."

When I next saw "Miss Pink Gingham"

I inquired about the late celebration and she exclaimed, "Oh, it was wonderful, all the bears and everything, and I 'busted' three balloons. I just love the circus."

THE TOLL OF SILENT DESERT

In the southwestern portion of New Mexico, between the Saux River and the Sierra Macheta Mountains, lies Silent Desert, a vast expanse of leaden skies and sun baked sands shimmering in the sweltering heat. Few, indeed, are the men who have dared to traverse that stretch of certain death.

Late on a hot afternoon in July, one solitary figure moved across the unbroken grayness of the scene—a weary traveler gamely plodding on in the face of a scorching south wind that came hissing out of the hazy distance. The man had traveled far. His water bag was empty, and fever throbbed in his veins.

Suddenly the traveler halted. On the distant horizon, where the dull skies seemed to meet the still duller sands, he spied something green. Upon closer scrutiny he could make out the forms of leafy trees and sparkling water. No time for hesitation then. With trembling hands he drew a soiled and jagged paper from his pocket. After examining it for a second or two, he uttered a shout of joy, and again looked up. But alas! Silent Desert had played him false. The trees and the water were gone, and with them had departed the spirit that says, "Fight on!"

Slowly, then, like a crumbling wall, the disappointed traveler fell face downward on the sand. Evening approached, the sun sank and the stars appeared, but the man did not stir. A gaunt specter with fiery eyes tripped out of the darkness, then another and another.

The animal children of Silent Desert were come to claim their own.

CLOUDS AND SUNSHINE

When all the sky is clouded o'er,
And raindrops thickly fall,
Remember that above the clouds
The sun shines over all.

And when your day is dark and gray,
And naught but ill seems true,
Remember that the morn may show
The world more bright for you.

SENIOR A HONOR ROLL

Twenty-two students of the June class of 1921 will be graduated from North Central with the distinction of having received 90 per cent or better in their four years' work and without having failed in any one of their subjects. The feature of the honor roll this semester is the breaking of the individual record for high scholastic standing by Margaret Bement. Miss Bement leads the Senior Honor Roll with an average of 97.1 per cent for four years' high school studies. Elizabeth McClung was second with an average of 96.25 per cent, and Edward Murphy third, with 96.2 per cent. All the first three on the list surpassed the previous record of 96 per cent held by Marion Lafollete and Roy Smith. Those who qualified for the honor roll follow in the order of their ranking: Margaret Bement, Elizabeth McClung, Edward Murphy, Erna Nelson, Margaret Ingersoll, Harry Arend, Pauline Thompson, Herman Swanson, Delmar Ruble, Mary Fosley, La Verne Eldridge, Ruth Hove, Robert Smith, Glenn Whitefield, Ralph Stauber, Dorothy Bryan, Gladys Evans, Mary Lewis, William Marsh, Lucile Magee, Clarence Norman, and Ernest Wetherell. These standings may vary in a few instances owing to the fact that this list was compiled before the final grades were given out. To qualify for the list, a student must average 90 per cent or above for four years' work, and must never have failed in any subject.

All seniors who made the honor roll will receive the North Central honor emblem, the Old English letters "N. C." at the commencement exercises.

THE STATE PRESS ASSOCIATION

In the afternoon of May 6, 1921, at the University of Washington, Seattle, was formed the Washington State High School Press association. All high school publications in the state were declared members of the organization, and Eugene Parmeter of Lewis and Clark high school was elected president for the next school year.

The purpose of the association is to promote better news writing work in the high schools, and to connect more closely the high schools of the state through the exchange of news. Because of the short time until the end of this term, no definite plans were made at the conference for the regular exchange of news between the schools. Despite this fact, many publications have already started exchanging their important news items.

The second meeting of the association, and all meetings thereafter, will be held early in the fall instead of in the spring. This will enable it to take up new problems and methods, and to help the high school publications get started in the proper manner, at the beginning of the term.

THE SCHOOL SAVINGS BANK

The problem of thrift among high school students has at last been solved by the school savings bank, established for the first time in North Central high school this semester. The necessity of some system to encourage students to save their money rather than to spend it for unnecessary things has long been felt. The fact that the students were, hitherto, unable to go to the banks during business hours, has caused many students to neglect saving their money, and the result was that the money was soon spent. But there is no inconvenience caused by the school bank, since money can be deposited before school, during lunch periods, and after school, in room 109, any day in the school year.

According to the statistics from the thrift questionnaire sent out Friday, May 13, the boys and girls in North Central high school spend $2,812.95 weekly for unnecessary things. Almost all of this could be turned to a more useful account, if the students would deposit their money in the school bank. It has been estimated that five cents saved every day throughout the school year will bring $10 by the end of the year. Ten cents saved every day would mean, approximately, a $20 bank account by the end of the year.

The money taken in at school is kept in the Security State Bank, corner of Monroe street and College avenue. All deposits are safe-guarded. In order to have a complete record of the deposits, duplicate deposit slips must be made out by the student. One is kept at the school, and the other is sent to the bank. Money can only be withdrawn through the Security State Bank. Deposits on accounts can be made during the summer vacation. Thus deposits may be increased or withdrawn when school is not in session.

The midget bank is conducted by the commercial department, under the direction of F. C. Van de Walker. The students taking the commercial course assist on the records. The aim of the thrift department, according to Mr. Van de Walker, is to encourage savings among the high school students for such purposes as to pay graduation expenses, and to help pay expenses through college.

LIBRARY

There is only one other high school library in the United States that is as large and as well equipped as the North Central library. The North Central library, of which Miss Lucile Fargo is the librarian, has a seating capacity of 165, with a consultation room which seats fifteen persons. It has been estimated that there is an average attendance of over 1000 students a day in the library.

There are approximately 7000 books now in the library, 1400 of which were added this year. Of this number, 880 are the gifts of individuals. The library receives 42 periodical magazines regularly, including one Spanish and one French, and 107 new pamphlets have been received this year. Approximately 2100 cards have been added to the card catalogue since last September. From September, 1920, to April, 1921, there was an average of 71.1 per cent total circulation each day. This does not include supplementary reading books.

An addition which was made to the library this semester is "The Story of the Book," reproduced from the set in the Library of Congress. The entire set contains three groups of two pictures each. The pictures were hand-painted by Miss Lillian Stowell, head of the art department, and the frames were gilded to match the furniture in the library.

The "open door" policy of the library is well expressed in the following stanza:

"Are you in search of knowledge,
The lore of olden states,
Do you want to learn of art,
Or tax, or railroad rates,
Of stars or Dinosauria,
Of lands that hold the Finn,
The Esquimaux and Celts,
Or where you mine your tin?
Walk in!"

THE ATHLETIC BOARD

The body which determines North Central's athletic policies and awards all letters is the Athletic Board. Captains, managers, and coaches of all sports are members of the board, as are also Principal A. H. Benefiel, Vice-Principal F. G. Kennedy, and four pupils elected by the student body at large.

The Athletic Board formerly met at luncheons, but since it has grown so large it meets upon special call.

The student members last semester were Myron Hanley, Orin Matlock, Neal Smith, Ron Robertson, Milton Martin, Bob Smith, Bill Rendle, Orville Peterson, Berner Walker, Alex Bremner, Jerome Andrus, and John Morrow. All the students mentioned are not members now, as certain sports have gone out of season. Andrus, originally track captain, has been replaced on the board by Morrow, who was elected captain because of Andrus' being unable to participate in any competition.

NORTH CENTRAL PRINT SHOP

One of the departments of North Central which should receive special mention is the print shop, organized three years ago under the direction of E. E. Green. During the last three years the material and equipment used have more than doubled, and the cost has all been paid out of the proceeds from the print shop.

Besides turning out the tickets and programs for the various school activities, the shop prints all the grade and high school literature for School District No. 81, including the semi-annual report from the superintendent and secretary's offices.

Probably the most important function of the print shop is the printing of the News. All the mechanical work on the paper, from the setting of the ads to the folding of the printed sheets, is done in the print shop. There are seventeen students at present who are helping in some way with the make-up of the paper. They are under the direction of E. E. Green and William Tool, pressman.

This year the print shop organized a baseball team which played many games with local nines.

THE RED AND BLACK BOOK

The Red and Black Book is the annual publication of, by, and for the students of North Central. It is not a large publication; the fact is, it is quite small—pocket size. It contains much general information about the school and its activities. It contains a list of the sports in which North Central participates and the records of each; a complete list of the faculty, their departments, and their room numbers; a list of all the organizations of North Central and their officers, purposes, and requirements for membership; and much other valuable information which should be at the command of all the students.

The handbook was first published last year by the Girls' League, but this year the Associated Student Councils have taken charge of it. The committee of publication is appointed by the chairman of the councils.

The issue put out by the Girls' League proved to be of much value to the students. The Associated Councils have taken it over with the hopes of making the future issues larger and more complete.

FRENCH CONTEST

The French contest was conducted for the first time, this semester, under the auspices of the Sans Souci club. The members of the club have decided to make the contest an annual event. The first winner of the contest was Margaret Bement.

Any student in North Central high school who has taken three semesters of French is eligible for the cash prize, but they may. There is a cash prize of five dollars to the winner of the contest, and honorable mention to the persons winning second and third places. Members of the club are ineligible for the cash prize, but they can work for honorable mention.

The contest is carried on like an examination. The judges are three members of the faculty of the French department. They base their decision on the student's grammar, his ability to re tell stories, and his oral work. Each paper is numbered, and then each judge ranks it. The judges then cast their ballots. The student who ranks the highest in the opinion of all three judges wins the prize.

The money used for the prize is taken out of the Sans Souci club funds. The purpose of the contest is to promote interest in French, and to encourage students to do better work in the language.

THE VOX AWARD

Each semester an award is given by the Vox Puellarum society to the girl of the graduating class who has made the most progress since she has been in school. Isabel Nelson was given the award this semester.

The award is a ten dollar cash prize. The winner is selected on the basis of how much improvement she has made in four years in regard to personality, accomplishments, scholarship, and overcoming of difficulties. The choice is made by a committee consisting of Principal A. H. Benefiel, Miss Nelle Wilson, Miss Jessie Gibson, and two girls appointed by the president of the club.

Last semester the award was given to Dorothy Redd.

ALGEBRA CONTEST

In the fall of every year the Mathematics club holds an algebra contest. Any student who has had two semesters of algebra is eligible. The prize consists of a small silver loving cup, and the winner also has his name engraved on the Mathematics club trophy plate. The prize is provided from money furnished by the club. Margaret Bement was the winner of the contest last fall.

The winner is determined by a process of elimination. The problems used are those involving the fundamentals of algebra, such as factoring and equations. The test is under the direction of a committee from the Mathematics club, and its faculty adviser. The competitors sit in rows, and when they have solved a problem, they stop while the marker goes up the row and marks their papers. If the solution is right, he makes no mark; but if it is wrong, he marks it with a check. When the student has made three errors, he drops out. The person who stays in the contest longest wins.

The purpose of the contest is to promote interest in mathematics and to encourage the boys and girls to do well in their work.

TYPEWRITING CONTEST

To be eligible to enter the typewriting contest one needs only to be enrolled in one of the four typewriting classes. Any one who writes a perfect paper for 30 minutes receives a silver loving cup. Lorin Markham, June, '19, is the only person who has ever won the cup. In case no one writes a perfect paper, the one making the highest score receives a prize of five dollars. Norma Sparlin, enrolled in Typewriting II, won the five dollar prize this semester. She wrote 47.8 words a minute, and made only three errors. The prizes are provided by the Commercial club.

The rules of the contest are so made that each contestant has an equal chance. The students enrolled in Typewriting I must write twenty words a minute, those taking Typewriting II must write thirty words a minute, those in Typewriting III must write fifty words a minute. The judges of the contest are three members of the Commercial club.

The purpose of the contest is to act as an incentive for the students to acquire speed and accuracy in typewriting.

VOX LITERARY CONTEST

Any girl in school may take part in the Vox Puellarum literary contest by contributing an essay, poem, or short story. Three prizes are offered. The first prize is five dollars, the second prize is three dollars, and the third is one dollar. The money for the prizes is taken from the Vox Puellarum treasury.

When the girls have submitted their essays, poems, or stories, the manuscripts are numbered. None of the stories are signed. The articles are then turned over to the judges—usually three teachers—who decide which of the papers has the greatest literary value. When each of the judges has reached a decision, he casts his ballot and the result of the vote is then announced.

This contest is given for the purpose of interesting the girls in the school in literary work. The winners this year were Mary Fosley, first; May Newton, second; and Ruth Nehrlich, third.

GEOMETRY CONTEST

Any one who is taking, or who has taken Geometry II is eligible to take part in the geometry contest, which is held in the spring of every year by the Mathematics club. The prize, like that for the algebra contest, is a silver loving cup, and the winner's name is engraved on the Mathematics club trophy plate. The prize is provided by the club. May Johnson won the contest this spring.

The winner is determined by the process of elimination. The problems used are those involving fundamental geometric principles. The markers go up the rows and mark each student's paper with a check when he misses a problem. Three mistakes eliminate one from the remainder of the competition. The winner is the student who remains in the test the longest.

The contest helps to promote interest in mathematics and gives encouragement to the students who take it.

THE PAYNE LECTURES

Charles A. Payne, an eminent traveler and lecturer from Washington State College, gave a series of five lectures in the North Central auditorium during the week, February 21-26. The talks were illustrated and were educational as well as entertaining. The subjects of the lectures were as follows: "America—A World Nation," "Beautiful Hawaii," "Creation—The Nature Story of World Building," "Rome, Ancient and Modern," and "After the War, and Europe Today."

An extensive advertising and ticket selling program was carried out by the Student Council committee in charge. The purpose of these lectures, other than educational, was to establish a fund to purchase instruments for the school band.

THE LIBRARY BOARD

"Sign here, please, and report to library board meeting Monday morning," is the reception of a student who has misbehaved in the library.

The first thing the average student learns concerning the library board is that it meets every Monday morning at eight o'clock. A dignified-acting person whom the freshman takes to be the president of the board, imposes sentences on offenders. The girl who sits at the desk with the presiding officer and shuffles the cards in the index box is taken for the secretary.

How do these people get their offices? Who appoints the library monitors? the new student asks.

At the beginning of each semester the presidents of the Girls' League and Boys' Federation appoint two students from their respective organizations to act as members of the board. The fifth is chosen by the two presidents together.

The body meets and elects a president and a secretary. The officers and members of the board for the last semester were Dick Smith, president; Gladys Evans, secretary; Orlen Bailey, Neal Holm, and Helen Honefenger.

The library monitors for each period of the day are appointed by the board.

"Student government has worked very successfully this year. There has been no friction and good results have been obtained," said Miss Lucile Fargo, librarian.

WALLA WALLA DECLAMATION

Walla Walla high school won the annual declamation from North Central on March 25 in a closely contested program, Wa-Hi receiving two of the three firsts awarded. Although North Central had a majority of points, the decision was given to Walla Walla because of their winning two firsts in the dramatic and humorous divisions.

In the oratorical division, Wesley Robson, giving Coughlin's "A Nation's Plea for a Chance," won from John Thomas of Walla Walla, who gave "War and Public Opinion," by Reed.

"In the Palace of the King," was the dramatic reading of Miss Helen Dirks of Walla Walla. Miss Grace Glasser, the North Central entry, presented "The White Silhouette."

William Zeller of Wa-Hi presented his humorous selection, "The Great Pancake Record," in a pleasing manner. Miss Vera Blusson of North Central gave "Rabbits' Eggs and Other Eggs." Both Miss Blusson and Miss Glasser are members of the Masque.

The judges for the contest were Mr. Reid of Pullman, Miss Lois Dart and F. Cushing Moore of Spokane.

IN APPRECIATION

Because of his untiring devotion to the athletic teams of North Central, Dr. J. F. Hall was presented with a gold medal, bearing the North Central crest and the words, "In appreciation." The medal was a gift of all athletes in school. The fellows have felt for a long time that they should recognize the service and devotion of Dr. Hall, and took this manner of so doing.

GRUB STREET CLUB CONTEST

In the annual Grub Street club literary contest held last month, Alice Anderson was awarded first prize of $10 and Isabel Nelson won the second prize of $5. Two authors, Grace Glasser and Martha Matzner, tied for third place; so the club decided to award each $3, the amount offered as third prize.

This was the second contest held by the club and more than twenty compositions were turned in to the contest committee. The compositions could be of any literary nature, but had to be original, and could not exceed 1600 words in length. The purpose of the contests was to promote interest in literary work outside of the classrooms.

The papers were first judged by the club members and the twelve receiving the highest grades were then turned over to the final judges. The official judges were W. J. Sanders, head of the North Central English department; L. C. Robinson, head of the English department of Lewis and Clark; and Thomas Cahill, former principal of the Hillyard high school.

BAND AND ORCHESTRA

The band, under the leadership of Tom Doran, now has about thirty-five members. The organization went to Spangle this spring, marched in some of the large parades, and played at various athletic contests in which North Central teams were entered.

The band was greatly aided by the fund, which was raised by the North Central Mothers' club, to buy instruments. C. Olin Rice, director of the band, is endeavoring to get complete uniforms for the boys next fall.

The orchestra numbers only thirty-two members, but according to C. Olin Rice, director, it could be made much larger if there was a larger pit in the auditorium to accommodate it. The orchestra plays at entertainments, class plays, baccalaureate exercises, commencement exercises, and on various other occasions.

The band and orchestra are noted for the fine class of music they play, they do not waste time on the present day "jazz."

THE CAFETERIA

The North Central cafeteria is equipped to serve 576 students each lunch period. There are 72 tables with eight stools at each table. Besides two large ranges, there are one steam soup kettle and an electric dish washer in the kitchen. Students help prepare and serve the food, and clean up after each lunch period, but there are two women who are hired to do the cooking and to oversee the other duties. Students who help in the cafeteria get their lunches free.

THE VOCATIONAL DEPARTMENT

The vocational department, under the direction of Miss Nelle Wilson, has accomplished much during the last year. Many sets of questionnaires have been passed out to the students in an endeavor to find out their needs, their abilities, their accomplishments, their ambitions, and various other data which would assist in getting positions for those students who need them and in finding the right positions for the right students.

This department does not confine its work entirely to the students who are now in school, but assists many graduates to gain positions or to gain better positions. By its cooperation with the business houses of the city and with the students, it is able to perform a valuable service to both.

HONOR AWARDS

Besides the members of the Honor Roll, seven members of the graduating class will be awarded honor emblems in recognition of their services to the school. Laura Karn will receive an honor letter for her work in the vocational department of the Girls' League; Helen Kubillus, for work in the social service department of the Girls' League; Delbert McNamara, for accountancy work on the News; Gilbert Bean, for work on the News; Glen Johnson, for work in the Boys' Federation; Isabel Nelson, for art work, and Richard Smith, for Boys' Federation work.

Six members of the class, who are on the Honor Roll, will also receive honorable mention for school service. They are: Margaret Bement, Girls' League; Gladys Evans, library; Erna Nelson, art and Girls' League; Elizabeth McClung, Girls' League; Delmar Ruble, Boys' Federation, and Ernest Wethrell, News.

DELTA HI-JINX

Gray-headed mothers, solemn stout fathers, perfumed sisters, and bashful lovers applauded through tears of laughter at the annual Delta Hi-Jinx held in the school auditorium on the evening of April 29. The eight excellent acts of both professional and amateur character were given before the largest audience that ever attended a performance at North Central. Approximately 1,100 people found seats or standing room, and probably 100 more were turned away. "Pep" was the watchword from the minute the syncopations of the Delta "jazz" orchestra started, until the curtain fell on the last act of "The Empty Barrel," the feature comedy of the evening.

The two Corhan brothers as paperweight boxers furnished a good curtain-raiser in "A Round or Two of Fun."

The Delta Comedy Trio, Marshall, Ruble and Bailey, were especially good in their presentation of popular songs.

Miss Caris Sharp presented her pupils in dance divertissements which won the approval of all.

"Brick" Johnson and Dick Smith, in their presentation of Prince Homer Ki-Ya-Hu-Rah, the Mysterious Indian Prince, were original and got many laughs.

Professor J. Deatherage, professional ventriloquist, was on the program with his company of talking dolls. Guy Seacrist, magician, puzzled the audience with his tricks.

The last number was the musical comedy, "The Empty Barrel," in two acts, which was splendidly acted by a large cast of singers and dancers. The comedy was written and directed by Leo A. Borah.

CUPID CLUB

Another honorary society is under process of organization. As in the Avoirdupois club, certain conditions must be true of one, or rather of two, before they are considered for membership. The membership of this proposed society will always be half masculine and half feminine, since two members are taken in at a time, a boy and a girl. The trouble encountered by many clubs in arranging a partner for every one will be eliminated in this organization.

To qualify for membership, two people must be so taken up with each other that they are always seen together between periods, at lunch and after school, to say nothing of every evening.

The charter members for the new honorary society will probably be Dick Smith and Lucille Stone, Ron Robertson and Glenmar Witt, Dwight Snyder and Louise Clausen, Ed Williams and Jean ditto, Bill Fousey and Aileen Linney, Walt Horn and Margaret Bement, Del Ruble and Elizabeth Poole.

THE AVOIRDUPOIS CLUB

Any student in school who weighs over 200 pounds automatically becomes a member of the Avoirdupois club. The members at the present time are Tom Laird, Fred Marshall, Harley Olson, Marguerite Miller, Kathleen Riley, Helen Honefenger, and Norman Jones. The name is taken from the fact that the members have an unusual amount of avoirdupois.

Officers were chosen on the weight scale, the heaviest being given the highest office and so on down the list. The officers are: Harley Olson, president; Tom Laird, vice-president; Fred Marshall, secretary, and Marguerite Miller, treasurer.

THE JESTER CONTEST

By contributing the most acceptable material to the Prep School number of the Jester, comic monthly magazine of Columbia University, New York, the North Central News was awarded first place over some 500 high schools from all parts of the United States. In consequence, the News was presented with a silver loving cup by the Jester.

Fred Marshall of North Central tied for third place for national honors in individual art contributions. His main work was entered in the frontispiece competition but he also drew cartoons to illustrate the comic stories.

The contributions from North Central were not signed, with the exception of Marshall's drawings, but were sent in the name of the News. The articles used were the work of James Hanifen, Maurice Amiot, Maurice Saffle, Philip Hindley, Robert Smith and Ernest Wetherell, all of whom have been News "Column" editors.

SENIOR PICNIC

Fate seemed against the seniors from the start, the day of the picnic at Medical Lake, but, nothing daunted, the adventurers started out and braved the cold and rainy weather. All day long the sun played tricks with the clouds, sometimes shining so brightly as almost to discourage them, but only to slip back again, and from its hiding place, to watch the torrents fall.

The special train was compelled to stop more than once after it left the terminal station to let on some of the belated but would-be passengers. But at last the train was on its way. One lone damsel boarded the car in haste and glanced anxiously from face to face in search of her handsome swain, but the unfortunate damsel was doomed to a disappointment. With a woe-begone look, she seated herself in the corner of the car and subsided.

The travelers were well entertained. An extemporaneous program, consisting of speeches and jokes, followed by several musical selections, was given. Orlen Bailey and Fred Marshall were the leaders in the fun.

Arriving at the lake, the picnickers found that the gasoline launch was in poor shape, but could manage somehow to take 28 people across the lake in about fifteen minutes. Not wishing to waste time, some of the more ambitious members of the party walked around to the other side. Some of the rest waited until a rowboat came up and they were given a chance to be rowed across, and some of them waited until the launch returned. At last, the entire party reached the other side of the lake by some means.

There were three sources of entertainment for the boys and girls: first, they might take a rowboat and go out on the lake; second, they might visit the Medical Lake insane asylum; and, third, if they were lucky enough to have friends who had a car, they might go for an automobile ride. If these three pastimes failed to draw the visitor out, he could sit on the shore and watch the others enjoy the boat riding. The picnickers were thus entertained in various ways in the afternoon before the lunch was served.

The showers being frequent, every one soon had damp clothes but no one had damp spirits. The sun would shine so brilliantly on the lake as to tempt the joy-seekers to go out in the rowboat, and then the trickster would slip behind a cloud, and laugh at the discomfited riders of the waves, while the rain poured down. Their light summer wearing apparel was little prepared for such showers.

Searching for shelters, the students ran for the tent-houses in Camp Comfort and huddled under the roofs, laughing and joking even while their teeth chattered. The lunch, being now prepared, every one formed in a line, while the plates were filled with baked beans, potato salad, three sandwiches, a sweet pickle, and a glass of lemonade. The hungry guests soon made way with the last crumb of this repast, and hurried back for the dessert, which consisted of ice cream and cake. After making sure that all the refreshments were gone, the members of the party separated once more, and each one took his own way.

The time before the train left was spent in much the same manner as the time before the lunch was served.

No doubt you are curious about the lone damsel in search of her swain. Yes, she found him, but alas, he was burdened with another of the fair sex. With the patience and good-nature such as his type always possesses, he undertook to provide amusement for both of his friends. His intentions were good, but that "three makes a crowd," is a fact that can not be done away.

One by one the returned travelers straggled into the Medical Lake terminal station, to await the departure of the train. In order to make the time pass swiftly some of the students of Miss Elliot's advanced expression class entertained the crowd inside the station. The program consisted of readings by Blanche Swinford, Pauline Thompson, and Mary Fosley.

The weary but gay picnickers boarded the train for home. When all were seated, the jokes, speeches, and songs were renewed. "Maggie" Miller and Fred Marshall sang "Sweetheart," and several other popular songs, while the rest of the passengers joined in. Every little while the engine whistle joined in also, but it somehow lacked the harmony which characterized the other tunes. Thus the time passed until the travelers descended on Riverside avenue, each to take his own way once more.

MAY DAY EXERCISES

At the annual May Day exercises Friday, April 29, Lucile Magee was crowned Queen of the May by Irmen Gibney. Six senior girls, dressed in white, preceded the queen and her attendants. They formed an archway with wands, under which the queen marched to the throne. The queen was attended by Lucille Stone and Marjorie Kitto. Lily Finlay carried her train. The senior girls were Maryalice Hogle, Gladys Reaume, Dorothy Anderson, Lenna Baird, Lura Hall, and Helen Anderson.

The following program was presented before the throne:

Violin solo, Leo Kailin; vocal duet, Marguerite Miller and Fred Marshall; fancy dance, "Rustic Courtship," Zella Jacobson and Florence McCullough; Spanish dance, Zona Hubbell, Margaret Murphy, Naida Faulds, Julia Flory, Ruth Hamlin, Margaret Ingersoll, Evelyn Blair, Catherine Franzen, and Doris Robinson. The dance was directed by Miss Elsa Pinkham.

An orchestra composed of Margeret Slater, piano; Frank Pratt, cornet; Alex Bremner, saxophone; Dorothy Robinson, violin, and Ed Williams, xylophone, played several popular numbers.

The program was given twice in order to permit all the students to witness the exercises.

THE FLUNKIN' ROW

Johnny Deane was my old pal
When we were both in High,
And he sat in the Flunkin' Row
While I was placed near by.

Somewhat 'twas hard to study
When the rest were having fun;
So John sat in the Flunkin' Row—
Near by—Dad's only son.

We never tried to study hard
Like Jack or Bill or Joe,
We laughed and talked our time away
There in that Flunkin' Row.

The office was our chief resort,
And all our hopes and fears,
Were founded on that Flunkin' Row
Throughout the lazy years.

Whenever a question was put to us
We'd simply say, "Don't know";
That was the reason why we held
Two seats in the Flunkin' Row.

If we had failed to answer thus,
We'd have shocked the school, I guess,
So John sat in the Flunkin' Row
Beside me, I confess.

At length we left the dear old High
To broader paths to go;
We left our games, we left our fame,
We left the Flunkin' Row

John wanted to be a writer,
But they said he wasn't fit
Because of that old Flunkin' Row
Where we two used to sit.

I tried to go to college then,
But they wouldn't let me in;
I tried a score of different things
But simply couldn't win.

For the Flunkin' Row came in between
Old Man Success and me;
It ever rattled its old bones
And took its frightful fee.

Johnny Deane and I were pals
In the Flunkin' Row in High;
In the Flunkin' Row of life we sit,
Old Johnny Deane and I.

—Grace Whitcomb.

ATHLETICS

BASKET BALL

The 1920-1921 basket ball season was a success in every sense of the word, for the team accomplished its primary purpose, that of keeping unbroken the series of victories over Lewis and Clark.

With the first string letter men as a nucleus, Coach Taylor developed a fast team which met and defeated seven different quintets, losing to the eighth team by one point.

Those letter men who reported to Coach Taylor were Captain Milton Martin, at a guard position; Jack Davis at center, and Kent Allen at forward. Walter Horn made the other forward and Max Leslie the other guard.

The annual five game series with Lewis and Clark high school was won by North Central, the series going the full five games. North Central won the first game on their own floor. The next two went to Lewis and Clark, but North Central with her never-failing "fight" and the loyal student support, won the fifth game before a crowd of 1800, on her own floor.

Both North Central and Lewis and Clark suffered severe blows when two members of the Red and Black squad, Jack Davis and Richard Duwe, were lost by the graduation route, as were Hutsell and Tytherleigh of Lewis and Clark.

In addition to the regular five-game series with Lewis and Clark, it was necessary for North Central to meet the Gonzaga high school in a three-game series to decide the city championship, which was won by the Red and Black five in a bitterly-fought series.

At the Inland Empire tournament held annually by the S. A. A. C., North Central drew Walla Walla, one of the strongest teams entered in the tournament, and suffered defeat at their hands by a one-point margin, in one of the fastest and most bitterly-fought games of the tournament.

Coach J. Wesley Taylor was in a great measure responsible for the team's showing. Too much can not be said for Mr. Taylor in his splendid and efficient handling of the boys. He was with "his boys" constantly and accompanied them on all their trips.

The boys who received first team letters were Captain Milton Martin, who also received the Delta Honor Medal and was placed on the All-Inland Empire basketball team; Kent Allen, captain-elect; Jack Davis, Richard Duwe, Max Leslie, Loren Woods, Walter Horn, Cecil Hatton, and Manager Ronald Robertson. Those who received second team awards were Ernest Edge, Joy Williams, Claude McGerath, and Ralph Olson.

Following is a list of games and comparative scores:

N. C.	Opponents	Date	Place
26	Coeur d'Alene *	27 Dec. 10	Coeur d'Alene

34	Walla Walla	35 March 17	S. A. A. C.

BOXING

Three North Central boxers won their way to the S. A. A. C.-P. N. A. championship smoker May 6. Glen "Brick" Johnson, city champion at 155 pounds, lost to the P. N. A. champion. Don Jones, city champion at 135, won the decision over the P. N. A. fighter; and Al McDonald was knocked out in the second round by the Portland representative of the 115-pound class.

Joe Reager, welterweight champion of the northwest, trained the high school fighters for a while at the school and later used the S. A. A. C. gym. Mr. Reager first became connected with North Central when he refereed the Delta stag bouts. He then picked the best men and organized a boxing club that has taken part in several big matches in the city.

The club has appeared at the Legion in two matches and gave an exhibition for the Woodmen of the World. They defeated the Gonzaga high school boxers, won three places in the city championship matches at the S. A. A. C., and also staged several stags for the high school clubs.

The Delta club gave Mr. Reager a medal in appreciation of the work and interest he has promoted in the fistie line. He will stay on his ranch near Wallace this summer and will return in the fall to resume his work.

THE SCHOOL BASEBALL LEAGUE

The Reds won the championship of the North Central baseball league when they defeated the Centrals 12-9 on May 12. The four teams, Reds, Blacks, Norths, and Centrals, consisted of all baseball candidates not on the first and second teams. The object was to promote interest in baseball among the future prospects for the first team.

PRINT SHOP BASEBALL

The printshop baseball team, organized this spring under the direction of E. E. Green and William Tool, defeated the Webster junior high school in a three-game series. Stowe, pitcher for the print shop nine, struck out twenty men in the first contest.

Games were also played with the McKinley and B. A. A. C. nines. The print shop team was defeated in the series with the McKinley high, but was victorious over the B. A. A. C. nine, the score being 4-0.

TRACK

Fighting against overwhelming odds, crippled by the loss of their captain and three other heavy point winners last year, the North Central track team in the meet with Lewis and Clark, went down to defeat that was not without glory, for they contested every event with true Red and Black spirit and courage.

The Red and Black squad fought an uphill fight from the start, for very early in the season Captain Jerome Andrus was taken ill with pleural pneumonia, which kept him out for the remainder of the season. At the interclass meet, John Porter, broad jumper, fell sick with diphtheria, which prevented his returning to the squad for the rest of the season. A short time before the clash with Lewis and Clark, Albert Loren, star miler, and John Smith, crack sprint man, were taken ill and were in a weakened condition for the meet. Myron Hanley could not participate because three weeks' absence caused by smallpox prevented his being eligible.

North Central had three scheduled meets during the season and John Morrow was individual high point winner of all three, making a total of 54 points for the three meets.

The first meet of the year was with the W. S. C. frosh. North Central being severely trounced to the tune of 94-37.

In the second meet of the year, the Red and Black squad matched skill and ability with the combined teams of Kellogg and Wallace, Idaho, at Kellogg on May 14th. The final score stood North Central 78½, Wallace and Kellogg 52½.

In the third and final meet of the season, North Central suffered defeat at the hands of the Lewis and Clark squad, the score being 77½ to 48½. The outstanding features of the meet were the work of Morrow of North Central, high-point man, and the breaking of the shot put and high jump records by Ralph Case and Eugene Parmeter, both of Lewis and Clark.

John Morrow was the individual star of the meet, winning first in the pole vault and placing second in the broad jump, high jump, high hurdles, and 100-yard dash for a total of 17 points. Ted Collard of Lewis and Clark was second with 16 points, and Henry Kommers third with 15 points.

Eugene Parmeter of Lewis and Clark set a new record in the high jump by clearing the bar at 5 feet 8 7/8 inches. Ralph Case, also of Lewis and Clark, heaved the shot a distance of 49 feet 6½ inches, establishing a new record.

The meet was unusual because of the fact that North Central's hope was centered around one man.

Those who earned their letter awards this year were Captain John Morrow, Myron Hanley, Howard Pollock, John Smith, Edward Gullette, Ernest Edge, Kenneth Bush, Harold Berven, Cecil Hatton, Lyman Haynes, Milton Martin, George Pearson, Ronald Robertson, Claybon Lipscomb, James Warren, Dick Cheatham, Virgil Franklin, Albert Loren, and Joy Williams.

In spite of the misfortunes the team has suffered in losing some of its star performers, the one cheerful and optimistic person on the squad was Coach J. Wesley Taylor. His services to the team deserve the highest praise, for he was in a great measure responsible for the showing of the team in the Lewis and Clark meet.

BASEBALL

What promised to be a successful season with nine letter men on the squad, proved to be disastrous with the defeat of the North Central nine by Lewis and Clark in three straight games for the first time in the history of the schools. Sickness, failure of players to make their grades, and unsteady playing contributed to the team's defeat, although one of the features of the season was the steady and valuable playing of Captain Bill Rendle.

The first out of town game was played with the W. S. C. freshmen at Pullman, April 23, North Central losing by a score of 9-8. Brassington and Cheatham were the battery for the Spokane nine.

North Central won the second outside game played with Chewelah at Chewelah, April 30. The final score was 5-2. Byersdorf worked on the mound and Henry on the receiving end.

In the Lewis and Clark series, numerous errors, together with a lack of team-work, and the ability of the Orange and Black nine to take all the breaks of the games, caused the North Central team to lose. Lewis and Clark took the first game 9-2, the second 7-4, and the third 6-5. In the last two games, the N. C. nine out-hit the rivals 10-5 and 7-4. Byersdorf pitched all three games. Matlock caught the first and Henry the others. Sorenson and Hansen of Lewis and Clark, and Rendle of North Central were the stars of the series.

North Central took two of the three games with Gonzaga high, losing the second by a score of 8-7, and winning the last 4-2. It was the first series with Gonzaga, but was entirely successful.

By winning from North Central and Gonzaga, Lewis and Clark won the city high school championship.

The North Central lineup as it was most of the season follows:

Henry, catcher; Byersdorf, Brassington, pitchers; Matlock, first; Leslie, second; Rendle, third; Allen, short stop; Swanson, left; Berven, center, McGrath, right; Watson, utility fielder.

Rendle was captain, and Bob Smith was manager for the season.

Two positions are given North Central, three to Lewis and Clark, and four to Gonzaga on the North Central News mythical all-star city high school nine. The lineup is as follows:

Fueston, L. & C., catcher.
Sorenson, L. & C., pitcher.
Flaherty, Gonzaga, first base.
Teters, Gonzaga, second base.
Rendle, N. C., third base.
Swanson, N. C., left field.
Dosch, Gonzaga, center field.
Wilkins, Gonzaga, right field.

Byersdorf of North Central was ruled ineligible by the state high school association, and could not be considered for a position on the nine.

TENNIS

With no official coach, the North Central tennis team earned for itself no little glory in its several meets this spring.

The first regular tilt of the year was against Whitworth college, and North Central was badly outclassed. Manager Neal Smith was the only one who won from his opponent in this meet.

For the second official meet, the Red and Black team tangled horns with the S. A. A. C. and showed to better advantage, coming out at the small end of the final score of 4-3.

The final meet of the year, with Lewis and Clark, was won by the Orange and Black squad 4-3.

The features of the meet were the matches between Sanford Slawson of Lewis and Clark and Alex Bremner of North Central, the former winning only after three hard sets had been played off. The tilt between Max Leslie of North Central and John Butler of Lewis and Clark went to Leslie after three sets.

Max Leslie and Joy Williams both won their singles matches and also won their doubles match.

This year's letter winners are Alex Bremner, Max Leslie, Joy Williams, and Manager Neal Smith.

THE RELAY TEAM

SWIMMING

The North Central swimming team had but two meets during the spring semester—one with Gonzaga university and one with Lewis and Clark high school. Coach E. B. Godfrey's team has been entered in the Inland Empire championship meet, however.

On March 30, the Red and Black swimmers defeated Gonzaga university by a score of 52-6, capturing every first and second place except one. Captain Orville Peterson and Verne Cunningham starred for North Central, while Captain Harold Gleason of the Bulldogs registered four of the total scores for the college men.

Although the score was 34 to 34 in the semi-annual meet with Lewis and Clark, North Central, by winning the relay, was declared the victor according to aquatic rules. Peterson and Cunningham won two first places each and were members of the winning relay team.

Five new city records were set in the contest with the south side and another was tied. Cunningham tied the record of 1:06 in the 100 yard free-style. The new records made were: 60-foot plunge—Burton Reed, L. & C., 31 2-5 seconds; old record—B. Reed, 37 3-5 seconds. 220-yard free-style—Orville Peterson, N. C., 2:48 2-5; old record—O. Peterson, 2:51 4-5. 100-yard breast stroke—George Blakslee, L. & C., 1:22; old record, 1:24. 100-yard back stroke—Orville Peterson, N. C., 1:19 1-5; old record—O. Peterson, 1:28. Relay—North Central, 1:27 4-5; old record—North Central, 1:28.

The boys who were awarded letters were Lyman Haynes, Ed Gullette, Lester Jacobsen, and Edwin Smetheram. Orville Peterson, Verne Cunningham, and Louie Aston earned their stars for the school year in the meet with the Tigers last fall.

GIRLS' ATHLETICS

GIRLS' BASKET BALL

During the midwinter the girls' basket ball games were played off in the gym with much enthusiasm. The junior team, captained by Lucille Edgington, was victorious and each member received a regulation block letter. The juniors lost only two games. In one game they tied with the sophomores.

The senior girls won second place and received the class numerals. Their captain was Nora Green. The girls in the graduating class who played on the team were Jessie McFarlane, Mary Lewis, Nora Green, Martha Freeland, Lura Hall, and Dorothy Anderson.

Janice McAvoy was captain of the sophomore team which won third place. As an unusually large number of girls turned out for the freshman team, it was necessary to form two teams. Celia Floodstrand was chosen captain of the freshman B team, and Eleanor Chandler of the freshman A team.

GIRLS' TENNIS

The girls tennis tournament between North Central and Lewis and Clark was held June 4 at the Spokane Tennis courts.

Of seven hotly contested matches, Lewis and Clark won four—three in singles and one in doubles. North Central won two singles matches and one double match. Mary Porter and Eleanor Hyslop won all three matches for the red and black. The result is gratifying, in that never before has North Central taken more than one match in a tourney with the south side girls.

Mary Porter, captain of the team last year, was reelected captain this year. The other members of the team were: Edith Grobe, Edith Freeborg, Laura Knudson, Helen Huneke, Eleanor Hyslop, and Edith Leif. Five of the girls played in a meet against Whitworth college, and won all the five single matches.

GIRLS' SWIMMING

Although there have been no girls' swimming meets this semester, the girls have practiced regularly and have been in training under Miss Elsa Pinkham, the girls' physical director.

Four girls who have done creditable work for the swimming team will be graduated in the June, '21, class. They are Jessie McFarlane, Mary Lewis, Nora Greene, and Frances Smith. Jessie McFarlane has also passed the life-saving test and is a member of the life-saving club.

Zella Jacobsen, a member of the team and of the class of January, '22, received the Neely trophy this year. It is a bronze tablet awarded by Dr. J. R. Neely to the girl who shows the greatest improvement in her swimming.

The swimming meet between North Central and Lewis and Clark will be held next November.

DANCING

A number of girls of the dancing class have taken part in dances for the operettas, plays, and various other entertainments. Miss Pinkham has coached the girls and they have spent much time in practicing.

The girls who have been most prominent in the dancing are Margaret Bement, Doris Robinson, Thelma Deffenbaugh, Margaret Ingersoll, and Maryalice Hogle.

ASSOCIATED STUDENT COUNCILS

Miss JESSIE GIBSON and L. C. BRADFORD, Directors.
Chairman ----- Richard Smith

Vice Chairman ----- Erna B. Nelson
Secretary ----- Ernest Wetherell

The first joint meeting of the executive councils of the Girls' League and the Boys' Federation was held on February 4. Max Leslie was elected temporary chairman and Isabel Roberts temporary secretary. A committee was appointed to draw up a constitution for the associated student body.

A month later the constitution of the Associated Student Councils was adopted by the entire membership of both the League and the Federation. The officers chosen after the constitution had been put into operation were: Dick Smith, chairman; Edna Nelson, vice chairman, and Ernest Wetherell, secretary.

The Associated Councils have power over work that concerns both the League and the Federation; that is, over work that concerns the entire student body. The chairman has the power to appoint committees of equal membership from the League and Federation. All members of the Central Council of the League and the Executive Council of the Federation are members of the Associated Student Councils. Hopes are entertained by Miss Jessie Gibson and Lowell C. Bradford, directors, that some day the present body will become the only executive body of student government.

GRUB STREET CLUB

L. A. BORAH, Director.
President	Ernest Wetherell	Recording Secretary	Harvey Brassard
Vice President	Gilbert Bean	Treasurer	Kenneth Bush
Corresponding Secretary	Vernon Cunningham	Federation Representative	Stanley Pearce
		Reporter	Russell Wetherell

Named after that well-known street in London which was the gathering place of so many literary geniuses, the Grub Street club was founded in the fall of 1915 by L. W. Sawtelle, then head of the English department of North Central, and Walter Blair and Harry Shoemaker. In the fall of 1916 the club was reorganized as a school activity by the principal of the school. In 1918 H. F. Holcombe, of the science department, became director of the club during the absence of Mr. Sawtelle.

Every year the club has a joint meeting with the Vox Puellarum, the girls' literary club of North Central, and the Papyrus club of Lewis and Clark. A literary contest is held annually for all of the school except the club members.

Leo A. Borah, faculty director of the News, was selected by the members of the club to succeed Mr. Holcombe, who left North Central to take a position in Broadway high school, Seattle.

The club is now enjoying a most prosperous year. The present members are: L. A. Borah, faculty director; Harry Arend, Louis Ashlock, Gilbert Bean, Harvey Brassard, Kenneth Bush, Maurice Balfour, Wayne Bevis, Vernon Cunningham, George Daniel, Frank Eaton, John Graham, Delbert McNamara, Stanley Pearce, Wesley Robson, Edwin Rule, Gerald Coleman, Robert Smith, Ernest Wetherell, Russell Wetherell, Dale Van de Walker, George Wiffoox, and William Tousey.

MATHEMATICS CLUB

MISS GERTRUDE KAYE, Director.

President	----- Wilbur McGuire	Secretary	----- Frank Queen
Vice President	----- Clarence Norman	Treasurer	----- Evelyn Engdahl

The Mathematics club is known chiefly through the two contests which are staged each year, the algebra contest in the fall, and the geometry contest in the spring.

Membership in the club is limited to students who receive B or better for a year and a half of work in mathematics.

BOYS' FEDERATION

L. C. BRANFORD, Director.

President	----- Glen Johnson	Financial Secretary	----- Walter Horn
Vice President	----- Max Leslie	Treasurer	----- Orville Peterson
Clerk	----- Ernest Wetherell

The Boys' Federation is composed of all the boys in school. This organization and the Girls' League are among the agencies that make North Central one of the most democratic schools in the country. The Federation was formed in order to give every boy some interest in school organizations and activities. The organization has gradually broadened its activities until now it enters fields entirely outside the school. These outside activities are handled by the social service department, headed by Neal Smith.

This department has conducted programs at the county poor farm, the tuberculosis sanitarium, and the children's home.

Wesley Robson, in charge of the personal service department, has conducted the good fellowship drive aside from helping numerous students who were failing.

The community service department, under Robert Smith, has been very successful this semester in community work.

VOX PUELLARUM

MISS ELGINE WARREN, Director.

President	Margaret Bement	Corresponding Secretary	Ethel Marshall
Vice President	Lucile Magee	Treasurer	Lenna Baird
Recording Secretary	Elizabeth Poole

The Vox Puellarum, the girls' literary club of North Central, has been particularly active this year. The club staged a literary contest and presented a "Good English" play, "The King's Gift," which was written by Miss Warren, faculty director of the club.

RIFLE CLUB

MALCOLM C. SMITH, Director.

President	Leslie Graham	Treasurer	Lee Endicott
Vice President	Walter Blatchford	Sergeant-at-Arms	Hobart Simonds
Secretary	David Auld

The Rifle club was organized last semester to develop better marksmanship among the boys. The members are placed in two divisions according to their individual target records.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

NELLIE C. STONE, Director.

President	Erwin Yake	Treasurer	Marguerita Siegloch
Vice President	Herndon McKay	Reporter	Dorothy Walker
Secretary	Helen Straub	Sergeant-at-Arms	Philip Olsen

The Commercial club offers to every student enrolled in typewriting an opportunity to show his ability through the typewriting contest which it conducts each year.

ART CLUB

MISS LILLIAN STOWELL, Director.

President	Erna B. Nelson	Secretary	Phil Reid
Vice President	Grace Smail	Treasurer	Hugo Pfeffer

Two years ago the Art club was organized to promote interest in special arts. The members prepare exhibits for the library and make posters for school plays.

AMPHION SOCIETY

C. OLIN RICE, Director,
 President _____ Marjorie Kitto

Vice President _____ Fred Marshall
 Secretary-Treasurer _____ Marjorie Segessenmann

The Amphion society is a musical club composed of singers and instrumental soloists. Before he may become a member, the student must display his ability, first before the club, and then in convocation.

SENIOR ENGLISH CLUB

W. J. SAMPSON, Director.

President .....	Delmar Ruble	Secretary .....	Lucile Magee
Vice President .....	Edward Murphy	Treasurer .....	Delbert McNamara

The Senior English club is an honorary society composed of all students who have obtained four B's in English. The club was organized last semester to promote interest in the study of English. The club has held several meetings and among other things accomplished, has selected a design for a pin.

ROOTERS' CLUB

L. C. BRADFORD, Director.

President .....	Kenneth Bush	Treasurer .....	Edward Gillette
Vice President .....	Dwight Snyder	Publicity Agent .....	Gilbert Bean
Secretary .....	Ernest Wetherell	Federation Representative .....	Kenneth Bush

The Rooters' club is composed of boys who boost all of North Central's activities, and who form a nucleus for the yelling at all athletic contests.

AQUATIC CLUB

E. B. GONFREY, Director.

Treasurer -----	Berner Walker	President -----	Vernon Cunningham
Federation Representative -----	Louie Aston	Secretary -----	Stanley Pearce

The Aquatic club, one of the most recently organized of school clubs, has as its aim the promotion of swimming as a sport in the school. Each year the club awards a medal to the most valuable individual swimmer at North Central.

RADIO CLUB

A. L. SMITH, Director.

President -----	Fred Lawrence	Secretary -----	Julius Blinn
Vice President -----	Morgan Allen	Treasurer -----	Jay Isham
		Federation Representative -----	Lewis Scriven

The Radio club, one of the newest organizations in the school, is studying the principles of radio communication. The most interesting feature of the work of this club was the receiving of President Harding's inaugural address.

SANS SOUCI

Miss Alice Borresen, Director.

President	Margaret Slater	Corresponding Secretary	Dorothy Anderson
Vice President	Marie Sullivan	Treasurer	May Miner
Recording Secretary	Margaret Ingersoll

The French club, which was originally a girls' club but which has recently admitted boys of the French department into membership, has been studying the language and customs of France. Each year the club holds a contest and awards a prize to the student who makes the best grade in an examination given by the faculty director.

GIRLS' LEAGUE

Miss Jessie Gibson, Director.

Secretary	Isabel Roberts	President	Elizabeth McClung
Treasurer	Frances Smith	Vice-President	Laura Knudson

The Girls' League promotes cooperation and friendship among the girls in much the same manner as the Federation does for the boys. The League Honor Roll requirements are designed to develop courtesy, honesty, unselfishness, high ideals, and a greater interest in school work. The League is composed of four departments. Each department is headed by a student with a member of the faculty acting as adviser. The leaders and advisers of the four departments are:

Vocational—Kathleen Riley, director; Miss Lillian Robinson, adviser.

Entertainment—Aileen Linney, director; Miss Dorothy Trobridge, adviser.

Personal Efficiency—Jessie McFarlane, director; Miss Elsa Pinkham, adviser.

Social Service—Erna B. Nelson, director; Miss Helen McDouall, adviser.

Vice President	Madeline Flynn, North Central	Historian	Lucille Lane, Lewis and Clark
Secretary	Eleanor O'Shea, Lewis and Clark	Reporter	Lucile Magee, North Central

The Blue Triangle has a membership of eighty girls, forty from each high school. It was organized for the purpose of promoting friendship between the girls of the two schools.

CHRONICLERS' CLUB

Miss HELEN PRINCE, Director.

President	Margaret Poole	Treasurer	Clarence Norman
Vice President	Jessie Grobe	Custodian	Edith Grobe
Secretary	Ellen Happer

Since the organization of the Chroniclers' club, in January, 1919, the members have completed a record of all North Central men who entered the service during the World War. Upon the completion of this work, the members will collect material for a history of the school.

MASQUE SOCIETY

Miss LUCILLE ELLIOTT, Director

President.....	Richard Smith	Secretary.....	George Patton
Vice President.....	Margaret Bement	Treasurer.....	Lucille Stone

The Masque is the dramatic organization of North Central, with the object of promoting dramatic art in the school. Each spring the society presents a play. "All-of-a-Sudden Peggy" was presented with great success this year.

GLEE CLUB

The Glee Club was recently reorganized under the direction of C. Olin Rice. Much of the talent for the operetta, which is presented each fall, is taken from the Glee Club. This organization also sings at the baccalaureate exercises each semester.

SPANISH CLUB

ERNESTO SALZMANN, Director.

President -----	Irma Miller	Treasurer -----	Fay Putnam
Vice President-----	Helen Cluff	Secretary -----	Dorothy Knight

The Spanish club, which was recently reorganized, has as its aim the promotion of interest in the study of Spanish. The club recently presented a Spanish play in convocation. A joint picnic with the Spanish club of Lewis and Clark is being planned.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS

The Chemawa Campfire group, of which Miss Annette Francisco is guardian, have accomplished many things since their organization early in April.

Their first problem was to find a means of getting money for their ceremonial gowns. To start this fund each girl was required to bring 12 cents. The fund was then swelled by the proceeds which a sale of organdy flowers, and another of candy, netted. According to Laura Karn, president, the group now have sufficient money to pay for all the ceremonial gowns. At present the girls are earning money by procuring subscriptions for McCall's magazine. This money will be used to pay the expenses of a trip to some lake in the near future.

The first ceremonial meeting of the organization was held three weeks ago at Down River park. At this meeting plans were formulated for making the ceremonial gowns. Thursday, May 19, the group entertained with a picnic at Five Mile. Mrs. R. E. Chandler was their guest. During the evening the members won camp-craft honors by learning to build three standard kinds of camp-fires. They then enjoyed a picnic supper and weiner roast. Last Thursday the girls met in room 111 to start the making of their ceremonial gowns, and to bead their headbands. The beading looms which the girls are using were made by the girls themselves. The second ceremonial meeting will be held Friday evening, June 8, at 7:30, in the school gymnasium.

Miss Lillian Stowell, who is an honorary member, deserves special mention for her efforts to help make the organization a success. She has helped the girls in the designing of their headbands and in the making of their ceremonial gowns.

The officers of the Chemawa group are Laura Karn, president; Eleanor Chandler, secretary; Gladys Evans, assistant secretary, and Beulah Parrill, treasurer.

Introducing "Babe Breth."

Sahara, in introducing Babe Breth, presents to you that big funny fellow whom every one likes. He's a jolly fellow, and if you like his page this time, he'll probably be here to stay.

Babe is the official mascot of Sahara. Although he's a big heavy boy, he is capable of dispensing a little light humor once in a while. He stands for good clean fun, and he stands for student support of all school activities. In making his bow to you, Babe hopes that you will appreciate his jokes and his effort to give you a different comic page.

Babe believes that the students of the graduating class may be well proud of their record, and he wishes them every success in the future work.

Consider the child—he needs no music in order to toddle.

ALAS AND ALACK

Taking Impulsive Gym.

I went around to the gym office, and after shedding my rags for something no modest girl should see, I called for action.

I got it!

A guy caled me and marked me down for 3333 board feet.

Then he found out how ticklish I was and asked me if my grandmother was addicted to the use of dill pickles, and if I got my freckles from my father's side of the house, or from sleeping on a screened porch.

Then he asked me if I knew the rudiments of craps and the difference between a jackknife and a swan, and next he tried to get me to break a chain that was spiked to the floor, but I was wise and didn't pull hard at all. He also made me try to pull a bar down from the ceiling. I dragged myself up to it three times, but it wasn't no use.

The guy said I wuz built crooked, but when I told him where my dad was, and he saw as how I couldn't help being crooked, he marked me 100 per cent.

When is a joke a good one? Some jokes are too good to be good, some are too bad to be good, while others are bad enough to be good.

N—C

A pun is the odor of a fading mind.

Shore Lines?

Ther were paddling along in the canoe, when he noticed a few bathing beauties on the beach. "Can't you, guide straight?" she asked.

"I'm looking at the shore lines," he answered.

Rouge et Noir.

Will you tell me, pretty maiden, what's the matter with your face? It doesn't look to me just like the old familiar place. There's an artful blush upon your cheek; a white spot's on your nose, and a tiny, arching, pointed streak in lieu of eyebrow shows. The spots that once were freckle-splashed are smooth and white as pearl; and on your forehead, flatly smashed, I see a waxy curl. The place upon my withered cheek your ruby lips caressed now shows a ruby Cupid's bow as if by stamp impressed. Ah, when I look upon such charms without a fault displayed, at last I understand just why the poets call you MAID.

N—C

Class Treasurer's Lament.

Lives of poor men all remind me

Honest toil won't stand a chance;

The more I work there grow behind me

Bigger patches—on my pants.

N—C

Jack: Why didn't you speak to me yesterday? I saw you twice.

Jaquetta: I never notice people in that condition!

FULFILLING THE REQUIREMENTS

En Avant.

There are numerous Ways of Filling space.
Ye editor can revamp
Old jokes
Or even reprint good
Ones from exchanges.
Novelettes can
Be written
About
Almost anything.
But of all the ways
Invented,
This is the Best.
